Stainless steel has brought to prominence a dramatic balance of mineral and fruit gifted by Stillwater Creek's fractured basalt soils, high on the Royal Slope near the top of the Frenchman Hills. Wonderful aromas of ripe white pears and apple blossoms emerge from the glass with notes of citric and a touch of beeswax. Its perfect medium-plus body and acidity deliver clean flavors of pear with a slice of golden delicious apple, and a blade of lemon grass supported by a flinty/basalt minerality. This is best served a touch on the cooler side. Pair with miso glazed halibut, shell fish or goat and soft cow cheeses.—Chuck Reinger, Winemaker
